

Full Page - Oregonian (published as Morning Oregonian) - June 8, 1889 - page 5

June 8, 1889 | Oregonian (published as Morning Oregonian) | Portland, Oregon | News Article | Page 5

RAISING TRETTLES.—The work of raising the trestle over the gulch at the end of Corbett street on the electric motor line of the Metropolitan Railway Company was begun yesterday. The trestles on the line are to be the most substantial in the state, the ties being of extra size and laid within half an inch of each other.